Celebrity Shout Outs

Fast and Furious film star Nathalie Kelley takes some time to enjoy the slow, natural life.

Not only does Cardi B drop the super hot video Press, she follows that up by announcing that she will be teaming up with OnlyFans to come up with some (hopefully) more provocative content. You can take a stripper out of the strip club...

Rita Ora is hanging out with a bunch of topless friends in Ibiza, Spain. This is a party I would have like to have had an invite to.

And then she would smile alone, sleeping herself, laughing, sometimes doing cartwheels and handstands out of sheer exhilaration at the simple surprise of herself now she was no longer a little girl.

Kate Moss had a bush party with photographer Tim Walker for some other magazine that's not TFM. I have to admit that the photos are tastefully done but it noticeable that the curtain certainly don't match the drapes.

Suki Waterhouse was caught outside of her hotel balcony topless in a pair of panties. I swear that a lot of these celebs just do stuff like this to see if anyone is watching. Well, we were!

INSTAGRAM MODEL OF THE MONTH - CARRIE LACHANCE @CARRIELACHANCE

Porn in the Era of COVID 19

During this historic, unprecedented time of COVID-19 lockdowns, shutdowns and mass quarantines, I was naturally very curious to find out how the porn industry is coping with this mess. Hopefully by the time you read this, life will have semi-turned to normal and everyone will be back to work in their everyday routines and environments. Until then, it's gonna be a crazy ride!

First, let's talk about how Covid has affected mainstream Hollywood productions and studios. Obviously, they are shut down. Since many productions are based in California, Governor Gavin Newsom has been the guiding force in making sure Californians are in lockdown and staying home. This means (gasp!) that even the privileged elite of Hollywood has been forced to buckle down and obey the rules (geez, what a big shock to that crowd!)

Am I sitting up nights worrying about how Brad Pitt, Meryl Streep, Leonardo DiCaprio, etc. are paying the bills on their mega mansions? Um...nope! These people are multi-millionaires, many of them from already wealthy family backgrounds, so I figure they'll survive this situation just fine. Of course, a lot of these celebs live wayyyyyyy beyond their means, so I won't be surprised to see at least a few Malibu mansions being sold for quick cash in the months ahead. But overall, this has been a much-needed wake up call to the ultra rich of hwood and D.C. that "shit happens" and no one is immune from unforeseen catastrophe.

So, let's talk porn. Unlike mainstream actors who depend on a huge support team, from cameras to lighting to makeup to script to wardrobe and on and on, porn folk have a major advantage: they can go solo and make it happen all by their beautiful, sexy selves! With a decent camera, some lighting and a bit of background, voila, instant sex show. Many adult performers have already been utilizing web cams, solo videos, and private online shows for years to make $$$$ (and put a smile on their fans' faces!)

This isn't the first (or undoubtedly last) time the porn industry has faced a severe shakeup or daunting crisis. The threat of an HIV-infected performer in 2014 caused a moratorium on production, with many adult studios shutting down production. This created major financial losses and changes. However, porn rebounded from that and I have no doubt, it will rebound from Covid. The porn world is incredibly resilient!

As of this writing, there has not been one documented case of Covid19 within the adult industry. That's great news and hopefully they can keep it that way. True, one can be skeptical about this statistic and question the veracity of the statement. But it really hasn't seemed like there's been any reported cases of an adult star being hospitalized or publicly identified as having the virus. And these days, I would think it would be difficult to keep it totally secret. One explanation for the lack of infections might be the fact that most adult performers are in their early 20's and probably pretty healthy, unlike the elderly population which has been hit the hardest. I did do some online investigation into this matter, and as much as I searched, I could not find any reference to anyone in adult who has gotten the virus, whereas we've known of a number of mainstream Hollywood actors as well as musicians who have been infected. Pretty interesting! For once, it looks like being in porn has worked to the benefit of those in the industry instead of being a negative factor!

I took a little spin through various Twitter accounts of some of my fave performers to see what they've been up to during this crisis. Lexi Belle, one of my long-time faves has been keeping busy! That's her on her kitchen counter!

See? She's keeping occupied baking cakes!
Yummmmmmmmm!

Like most successful adult entertainers, she's a resourceful gal, so I know she'll survive! She also goes on occasional wilderness hikes (paying attention to social distancing, of course!)

Wow, it would be pretty damn hard to keep your social distance from that beautiful bod, but hey, we all gotta make sacrifices, right?

Lexi is also quite active on a site called onlyfans.com

So what is it? Onlyfans started in 2016 and is still relatively new out there but has grown steadily. The New York times called it the "paywall of porn". Or the Patreon of porn. Anyone can sign up and create everything from amateur porn using an iPhone to more professional stuff including hardcore sex videos. The great thing about Onlyfans is that there's interactivity. Fans can pay for private shows for an extra charge and also DM their fave performers. With or without Covid19, I predict that Onlyfans is here to stay!

From looking at tons of Twitter feeds of pornstars, many were linking to Onlyfans.

At this point, just about every porn performer in the biz has some sort of presence at Onlyfans. So, it's clear that they've been able to ride out the Covid wave in ways that those in mainstream Hollywood cannot. That's not to say they aren't hurting. The bigger productions and more professional studios have shut down to comply with the no personal contact laws. Also, many adult performers depend on dance/stripper gigs throughout the year at adult clubs, and those have been lost to Covid as well.

I spend a lot of time in Las Vegas and I can tell you that it's an eerie GHOST TOWN at the moment with no clear re-opening date or guidelines being set for the casinos, hotels, bars and restaurants. Vegas is a major hub for adult performers with a lot of employment in the club scene, and that has gone down the drain too. When this nightmare started back in February, there was a brief moment of hope of free lap dances...lol. But that moment faded fast with the reality of the situation.

Luckily, many performers were already working as independent contractors before this thing hit. Girls like Lexi Belle who have a long-time, huge, established fan base are the ones who can most easily cope with a crisis like Covid. It's the newcomers just entering the business who have been slammed the hardest unfortunately. They are not the ones out there making 100K/yr doing Onlyfans or raking in money on webcams.

Like mainstream struggling actors, they are the people who were making ends meet paying rent with part-time gigs in the hard hit restaurant industry as bartenders and wait staff, so they have been hammered badly from many directions all at once.

I also wonder about the future of the AVN (Adult Video Network) Awards show. Scheduled every year in Las Vegas in January, it seems that so far the show will be held as usual in 2021. However, a lot can change between now and then with so many unknowns. There's been ominous talk of a second wave of Covid possibly firing up again during the regular fall/winter flu season. So, in my opinion, there's certainly a chance that AVN will end up being cancelled if things aren't fully under control by Winter 2021. That would be another bad blow to the adult industry, because AVN is the biggest awards show and publicity/money driver during the year with tons of parties and exhibitions, bringing over 35,000 people in attendance. Many of these people are from all over the world.

I used to talk to a guy in the industry who swore that every year he went to AVN, he'd come home with what he called the "AVN crud". I presume that was the regular flu (or something similar?!) He stopped going to AVN after coming home sick for the third year in a row. For sure, he won't be going in 2021, either! Maybe AVN should incorporate some "social distancing" from now on as a regular feature during flu season!

With all the negatives, let's not forget the obvious positive effect on the porn world during quarantine. That's right! Millions of horny, frustrated, bored out of their minds people trapped for weeks in their homes eventually needed to have an outlet, and what better way to do it than surfing some online smut sites to keep their spirits (and other things!) up! Nearly all porn websites have seen increased traffic. Pornhub.com has reported an 11% increase in traffic for the month of March. And check this out - the traffic in Italy surged an amazing 57% when Pornhub offered FREE premium service to all of Italy. Pornhub published an extensive list of charts for many countries showing the huge upward trajectory of visits to their site during March.

Of course, if people have no jobs or money to spend on platforms like Onlyfans, Patreon or porn webcams, those sites will also fail eventually. Unlike the elite Hollywood crowd, or the D.C. swamp dwellers like Nancy Pelosi with her 24K fridge filled with pricey ice cream, working men and women don't have the luxury of sitting around out of work for months on end. It's easy to be critical of the protestors who have marched, demanding re-opening of their states. But I definitely see their point and feel their pain. That's why I've taken the sometimes unpopular position throughout the Covid19 crisis that it's only by re-opening the nation for business that we can salvage anything down the line.

Y IN THE THEIR RIGHT MIND COUNTER PROTEST AGAINST THE PROTESTING OF RACIAL INJUSTICE?

A man was fatally shot during a night of confrontations between Trump supporters and counter protesters in Portland, Ore., on Saturday, the latest high-profile incident in a city that has seen nightly demonstrations for three consecutive months. On Sunday, city leaders denounced the violence while President Trump criticized their ability to contain it.

Hundreds of cars participating in a pro-Trump caravan made their way through the city starting late in the afternoon, clashing sporadically with counter protesters along the route.

Police say they are investigating a shooting that took place shortly before 9 p.m. local time as a homicide. "It is still early in this investigation, and I ask everyone to give the detectives time to do their important work before drawing conclusions about what took place," Police Chief Chuck Lovell said in a statement. "This violence is completely unacceptable and we are working diligently to find and apprehend the individual or individuals responsible."

The Associated Press reported that 600 cars were present, and police said the line of vehicles "stretched for miles."

As many of those cars and pickup trucks strayed from the route and headed downtown, police said, vehicle occupants and pedestrians periodically exchanged words, occasionally broke into fights and got into some minor collisions.

Videos circulating on social media show caravan participants shooting paintballs and pepper spray from their vehicles. In one incident, a car ran over a bicycle, prompting police to investigate.

Counter protesters can be seen yelling at the Trump supporters and, in one case, throwing eggs.

A gun-toting, 'far-right militia' group has clashed with Black Lives Matter protesters in Louisville, Kentucky, as anti-racism protests reached their fourth month in the embattled nation.

The heavily armed pro-Donald Trump group was pictured shoving guns in the faces of BLM activists amid tense scenes.

The town of Louisville was experiencing large crowds because of the Kentucky Derby, a popular horse race that had been delayed since May because of the coronavirus, causing protesters and counter-protesters to come out in force.

The Black Lives Matter protests, which have been going for more than 100 consecutive days across the USA, were initially sparked by the death of black man George Floyd while being arrested by a white police officer.

However, activists in Louisville protested with a new fervour yesterday as it is the home town of Breonna Taylor, a black medical technician who was fatally shot while sleeping in her bed by Louisville Metro Police Department officers in March in a botched and incorrect raid.

Protesters decided to use the Kentucky Derby as an opportunity to call for justice for Breonna, but the anti-BLM militia group had other ideas.

Hundreds of far-right activists dressed in combat gear, waving American flags and Trump 2020 signs, and armed with semiautomatic weapons faced off with protesters in downtown Louisville.

The pro-Trump and pro-police demonstrators call themselves 'The Angry Vikings' and sell themselves a militia group, and vowed to defend the city from BLM activists.

They are just a bunch of angry scared weak white people who think they own the country.

I am really sick of so called white supremacy!

TFM Headliner

His story.

Chadwick Aaron Boseman (November 29, 1976 – August 28, 2020) was an American actor. Born and raised in South Carolina, he took up acting professionally after he studied directing at Howard University. In television, he made guest appearances and was a series regular on Lincoln Heights (2008–2009) and Persons Unknown (2010). In film,

Boseman's breakthrough role came as baseball player Jackie Robinson in the biopic 42 (2013). He continued to portray historical figures, starring in

Get on Up (2014) as singer James Brown and Marshall (2017) as Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Boseman achieved international fame for playing superhero Black Panther in the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU) from 2016 to 2019. He appeared in four MCU films, including an eponymous 2018 film that earned him an NAACP Image Award for Outstanding Actor in a Motion Picture and a Screen Actors Guild Award for Outstanding Performance by a Cast in a Motion Picture. Boseman also headlined the film 21 Bridges (2019) and portrayed a central character in Da 5 Bloods (2020). His final film, Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, is scheduled to be released posthumously.

In 2016, Boseman was diagnosed with colon cancer. Boseman kept his condition private, continuing to pursue his acting career while receiving treatment. After a four-year battle, he died in 2020 from complications related to the illness.

Boseman graduated from T. L. Hanna High School in 1995. In his junior year, he wrote his first play, Crossroads, and staged it at the school after a classmate was shot and killed. Boseman attended college at Howard University in Washington, D.C., graduating in 2000 with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in directing.

One of his teachers was Phylicia Rashad, who became a mentor. She helped raise funds, notably from her friend and prominent actor Denzel Washington, so that Boseman and some classmates could attend the Oxford Mid-Summer Program of the British American Drama Academy in London, to which they had been accepted.

Boseman wanted to write and direct, and initially began studying acting to learn how to relate to actors. After he returned to the U.S., he graduated from New York City's Digital Film Academy.

He lived in Brooklyn at the start of his career. Boseman worked as the drama instructor in the Schomburg Junior Scholars Program, housed at the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture in Harlem, New York.

In 2008, he moved to Los Angeles to pursue his acting career.

According to film critic Owen Gleiberman in Variety, "Boseman was a virtuoso actor who had the rare ability to create a character from the outside in and the inside out [and he] knew how to fuse with a role, etching it in three dimensions [...] That's what made him an artist, and a movie star, too. Yet in Black Panther, he also became that rare thing, a culture hero".

Similarly, reviewer Richard Brody in The New Yorker finds the originality of Boseman's formidable acting technique in his ability to empathize with the interior lives of his characters and render them on screen as fully and completely belonging to the character. The Guardian critic Peter Bradshaw wrote of the actor's "beauty, his grace, his style, his presence [...]"

These made up Chadwick Boseman's persona [and he became] the lost prince of American cinema[,] glorious and inspirational".

THE TRUMP FAMILY

I'm not exactly sure where to start. There is so much to unpack here I would need a crew of movers to accomplish it without becoming overwhelmed.

That's the point though...we all ALL overwhelmed!

This family has committed more crimes and violations of the constitution, to the degree that it diminishes my belief in our legal system.

Can I do that?

Can I just ignore laws that I think are dumb or just don't want to follow?

Nope.

Yet,,,(poor Segway)

Donald Trump Jr and Ivanka Trump took part in a fraudulent scheme to sell units in a luxury New York condominium-hotel and "knew they were lying", according to a new book that explores how the current US president built his business empire.

Questions have long surrounded a criminal investigation into the Trump family's dealings around the Trump SoHo that was dropped in 2011. Public disclosure of email correspondence revealed that Don Jr and Ivanka knowingly used figures that exaggerated how well the condos were selling in a ploy to lure more buyers.

Trump first previewed the 46-storey Trump SoHo in lower Manhattan with fanfare in 2006 on his reality TV show The Apprentice, boasting "this brilliant $370m work of art will be an awe-inspiring masterpiece". But sales of units proved disappointing, especially after it was revealed one of Trump's partners, Russian-born Felix Sater, had a criminal past.

According to data filed with state and federal agencies, only 15% to 30% had been sold by the start of 2009, the New York Times reported. But in June 2008, Ivanka told the Reuters news agency that 60% had been sold, while in April 2009, Don Jr claimed in the Real Deal magazine that 55% had.

Buyers of units in Trump SoHo sued Trump, arguing that they had been defrauded by inflated claims of sales. The Manhattan district attorney's office then began investigating whether the allegations could also constitute a crime, issuing subpoenas and carrying out interviews.

The Trumps left a damaging email trail, first reported by the ProPublica website in 2017, that Bernstein writes "showed a coordinated, deliberate and knowing effort to deceive buyers. In one email, the Trumps discussed how to coordinate false information they had given to prospective buyers. Because the sales levels had been overstated at the beginning of the sales process, any statement showing a lower level could reveal the untruths."

"There was 'no doubt' that the Trump children 'approved, knew of, agreed to, and intentionally inflated the numbers to make more sales,' one person who saw the emails said. 'They knew it was wrong.' 'It couldn't have been more clear they lied about the sales and knew they were lying,'" another person said.

"Yet another said, 'I was shocked by the words Ivanka used.' Was there any doubt the Trumps knew they were lying and that it was wrong? 'Ten thousand percent no.'"

Trump and his co-defendants settled the civil case in November 2011, agreeing to refund 90% of $3.16m in deposits while refusing to admit any wrongdoing. As part of the settlement, the buyers agreed to no longer help the Manhattan district attorney's investigation into whether Trump's alleged fraud broke any laws.

Then there's Eric...

According to a Boston radio interview with golf journalist James Dodson, Eric Trump tells Dodson that Trump golf courses heavily relied on funding from Russia. Eric Trump denies this allegation.

Trump World Tower sales agent Debra Stotts told Bloomberg that they had "big buyers from Russia and Ukraine and Kazakhstan." New York real estate broker Dolly Lenz sold "about 65 units in Trump World Tower [...] to Russian buyers looking for real estate." Lenz is quoted as saying "I had contacts in Moscow looking to invest in the United States [...] what do you have to recommend?" They all wanted to meet Donald. They became very friendly." In 2002, "the push to sell units in Trump World to Russians expanded," when Sotheby's International Realty reportedly teams up with Kirsanova

Realty, a Russian company.

The Trump Organization reportedly welcomed the Russian clientele. For example, a 2013 article in The Nation about the influx of Russian money in Miami real estate noted that Elena Baronoff, a Russian-American socialite once described on the cover of a Russian magazine as “The Russian Hand of Donald Trump,” operated a real-estate company catering to Eastern European buyers out of the lobby of the city’s Trump International Beach Resort.

The New Republic has also extensively documented how the Trump Organization actively sought Russian buyers, so much so that the area around Trump Sunny Isles in Florida became known as “Little Moscow.” Within Trump’s Florida licensing developments, Reuters identified a total of twenty units in Trump Towers I, II, and III that were purchased by individuals with Russian passports or addresses. Individuals with Russian passports or addresses also purchased sixteen units in Trump Palace, twenty-seven units in Trump Royale, and thirteen units in Trump Hollywood. Trump accepted Russian money on a personal level, as well; Russian fertilizer magnate Dmitry Rybolovlev’s 2008 purchase of one of Trump’s mansions in Palm Beach for $53 million more than Trump had paid for it four years earlier. Some of these Russian buyers have brought more than just money to the Trump Organization—they’ve also brought links to Russian organized crime.

In 1984, a Russian by the name of David Bogatin purchased five condos in Trump Tower for a total of $6 million. Bogatin, who was linked to Russian mob boss Semion Mogilevich, pleaded guilty three years later to “evading millions of dollars in state fuel taxes in what state officials called one of the largest gasoline bootlegging operations in the nation.” The five condos were seized by the government, who claimed that he had used the purchase to launder money.

Separately, In April 2013, New York police arrested “29 suspects in two gambling rings” run out of condos in Trump Tower. A condo directly below a unit owned by Trump reportedly “served as the headquarters for a ‘sophisticated money-laundering scheme’” run by an individual who worked for Semion Mogilevich. Until he began running for president, Trump not only did not deny his extensive dealings with Russian investors and clients but actually spoke about it frequently, boasting of the amount of Russian money that flowed through his projects in numerous interviews. So, too, did his sons, Donald Jr. and Eric: In 2008, Donald Jr. told investors in Moscow that “Russians make up a pretty disproportionate cross-section of a lot of our assets,” while Eric reportedly told a golf reporter in 2014 that the Trump Organization was able to expand during the financial crisis because “We don’t rely on American banks. We have all the funding we need out of Russia.”

Trump met with Russian President Vladimir Putin five times over the course of two years, but no detailed record of the conversations exist — even in classified files. The Washington Post reported that Trump went to “extraordinary lengths” to conceal what the two leaders discussed.

The Clemson Tigers football team visited the White House after winning the national championship. Previous White House celebrations for sports teams have featured elegant meals that highlight the best of American cuisine. Trump served them a candlelit dinner of McDonald’s fast food, still in paper wrappers.

A federal judge ordered the Trump administration to remove the question “Is this person a citizen of the United States?” from the 2020 census. The new question had been proposed by the Trump administration after prompting from then-presidential advisor Steve Bannon and Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach, appointed by Trump to lead a voter fraud commission.

A class-action lawsuit was brought against the Office of Refugee Resettlement. It accused them of working with the Trump administration’s Immigration and Customs Enforcement to use children as “bait to arrest immigrants who come forward to sponsor them.”

The conservative-dominated Supreme Court ruled 5-4 to reinstate Trump’s ban on transgender people from serving in the military.

Trump declared a national emergency along the United States’ southern border in order to acquire his requested $5.7 billion for border wall funding.

There is a list, a very long list of these lies dating back to 2017 of Trump crimes, settlements and lies.

Yet, there are folks out there supporting this fool and his family.

Why?

There have been 81 criminal charges filed against folks under Trump and his 1st term isn’t even over. In comparison, Nixon had 68 people indicted and Reagan only had 18 - they were two of the most unlawful presidents in recent history.

They don’t even come close to Trump.

President Donald J. Trump is a clown, who lies during every press conference and rally. Every time he talks to the American people.

He is only being propped up by Fox News and conservative radio - and a few of them have jumped ship.

As we move closer to the election, if you are a Trump supporter, I give this advice.

THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT IS TRYING TO SQUASH E. JEAN CARROLL'S DEFAMATION CASE, WHICH STEMMED FROM HER SEXUAL ASSAULT ALLEGATION.

The Department of Justice moved to replace President Donald Trump's private legal team to defend the accused rapist in a defamation suit brought by author E. Jean Carroll. Last year, Carroll credibly accused Trump of raping her in a Manhattan department store in the mid-1990s.

In a predictably putrid response, Trump denied the assault, claimed (falsely) to have never met Carroll and — as grounds for why he could not have raped her — said that she wasn't his "type." These comments spurred the defamation suit, in which the Justice Department has now attempted to intervene.

According to the Justice Department, government lawyers must take over Trump's defense because he made the allegedly defamatory comments while "acting within the scope of his office as President of the United States." That is, they state it was within the scope of official duties to lie about and insult a credible rape accuser. Public money will now underwrite Trump's defense, and the intervention could move the case out of New York state court and into federal court.

The U.S. government, rather than accused rapist Trump, would effectively become the defendant in the case. Indeed, on Wednesday morning, the government opened a federal docket titled "E. Jean Carroll v. United States of America"; the state lawsuit had been "E. Jean Carroll v. Donald J. Trump."

MR. TRUMP KNEW IT WAS DEADLY AND AIRBORNE

HE LIED ABOUT THE CORONAVIRUS ANYWAY.

On Feb. 7, during a taped interview with Bob Woodward, President Trump acknowledged that the coronavirus could be transmitted through the air, that it was very dangerous and that it would be difficult to contain. "This is deadly stuff," he told the investigative journalist.

"You just breathe the air, and that's how it's passed," the president warned.

Despite his apparent understanding of the severity of the disease and its method of transmission, over the next month, in five cities around the country, Mr. Trump held large indoor rallies, which were attended by thousands of his supporters.

Mr. Trump spent weeks insisting in public that the coronavirus was no worse than a seasonal flu. It would "disappear" when the seasons changed, he promised in late February. "We're doing a great job," he said in early March.

Why lie to the American people? Why — as the administration accuses the Chinese government of doing — lie to the world about the severity of what was declared a pandemic only days later?

"I wanted to always play it down," Mr. Trump told Mr. Woodward on March 19. "I still like playing it down, because I don't want to create a panic."

As a result, the coronavirus spread faster and sickened or killed more people in the United States than in any of its peer nations.

If the United States had the same coronavirus fatality rate as Canada, more than 100,000 Americans could still be alive today.

September 2020

ARIES - Aries is the first zodiac sign; the presence of Aries usually signifies the start of something boisterous and energetic. An Aries man or woman is a go getter who will leave nothing to chance. Wild flirtations will punctuate Aries love life during the month of September; this is because the fire sign will stand-up to be counted when it comes to romance.

TAURUS - This tactile monthly zodiac sign attaches a lot of emotional significance to touch, especially in romance. Although Taurus may come off as stubborn, they are amongst the most stable of the zodiac signs. Taurus men and women enjoy making things using his or her own effort because they are very creative. When dating a Taurus be ready to take your time because Taurus lovers are exceptionally sensual.

GEMINI - This monthly duplicitous horoscope sign signifies versatility. Gemini normally presents two opposing sides of a personality. On one hand, a Gemini may be restless, contemplative or even indecisive, but on the other hand you may find a twin zodiac who is flirtatious, outgoing, fun to be with and very communicative. The positive thing is that both twins are never boring, since they can make amends and co-exist rationally.

CANCER - Cancer is both sentimental and intuitive of the Zodiac signs. Cancer is also one of the most difficult monthly horoscope signs to understand, because it exhibits strong emotions. In case you are single or dating again, Cancers are very sensitive people. Overly ambitious or superficial mates may have serious problems fitting into the billing

LEO - This lion sign is eerily noticeable by everyone, especially when it moves. Leo exudes a charm that is irresistible, reassuring and fiery. This fiery monthly horoscope sign is forthright and passionate when it comes to showing affection and very adventurous when it comes to sex. Leo mates are selected due to their willingness to allow the Leo to lead from the front, be independent and stand out from competition.

VIRGO - When it comes to love and sexual feelings, a Virgo lover will always cherish being loved and needed by the mate. Foreplay is very important during sex, but this should begin outside the bedroom, irrespective of how long it takes.

LIBRA - Qualities such as cooperativeness make Librans an easy target for courtship. For those in a relationship, maintaining a sense of peace and decorum is a winner with most Libra's.

SCORPIO - When it comes to sexual urge, Scorpio is the strongest of the Zodiac signs. Scorpio's usually take intimacy very seriously because they are very passionate when it comes to relationships. If you are dating a Scorpio, you need to be honest and intelligent. Foreplay starts with conversation and observation before love is consummated by lovemaking.

SAGITTARIUS - It is very difficult to keep a Sagittarius down because they are always enthusiastic, extroverted, optimistic and they love change. A Sagittarius in love is fun and playful to be with, because they are expressive and passionate. Sagittarius are willing to experiment with the unknown; there perfect match is usually a man or woman who exudes similar passion and attitude.

CAPRICORN - Capricorn stands out clearly from the rest of the Zodiac signs when it comes to keeping up with the traditional values and professionalism. This practical horoscope sign is always considered the most serious of the Zodiac signs; it loves an independent mind with a knack for prosperity. When it comes to love and sexual matters, a Capricorn is a serious lover who prefers taking things slowly albeit steadily..

AQUARIUS - Aquarius signifies utmost independence permuted with logic; this helps an Aquarius to see both sides of an argument. On one hand, Aquarius will present themselves as quiet and shy. On the other hand, an Aquarian individual will be forthright, energetic and boisterous. The positive thing about having an Aquarian partner or date is that they can see a world of possibilities where there is none. On the other hand, the greatest aphrodisiac for an Aquarius is intellectual stimulation. Nothing is more enlivening and appreciated to an Aquarian like chatting about future possibilities.

PISCES - For the single person, dating a Pisces partner can be very comforting and reassuring. Even though most Pisces are unlikely to take the lead on most matters, the presence of a Pisces in a relationship is bound to add strength to any project.
